that Mayor Schieren had no jurisdiction over the matter.
Mayor Schieren has not signed the resolution, but he has submitted the question to Corporation Counsel McDonald. If Mr. McDonald advises Mayor Schieren that the resolution comes within his administration he will veto it.

The law says that if any resolution passed by the Aldermen is not signed by the Mayor within ten days after being placed in his hands it becomes a law. The ten-day limit for Mayor Schieren to act does not expire for several days.

The fire started about 6.15 o'clock. The flames burned flercely, and at 7 o'clock the fenire building was destroyed. The loss is $15,000. The fire is believed to have originated from a defective flue.

St. George's was the oldest church in Astoria. Charles M. Belden is the pastitor. The church was attended by most of the well-known residents of Astoria. In the early days of Astoria John Jacob Astor was much interested in the community. Three bills were presented to the Legislature providing for a name for the settlement. The first name was Sunswick, the second Hallett's Point and the third Astoria.

John Jacob Astor promised to contribute exposed to build a church, provided the name Astoria was adopted. Hence this place received the name of Astoria.

CAMDEN MINISTER DROWNED

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 10.-The police are to-day investigating the drowning of Rev. Henry N. Cheeseman, pastor of the Eighth Street Methodist Church, whose body was picked up in the Delaware River at the toot of Chestnut street lat

The police think there was foul play. Some sailors on a vessel on the Dela ware heard cries of "Help! Help!" coming from the river. They rushed to the side of the vessel, and in the darkness saw a man struggling in the water. They immediately started to rescue him. but when they got him he was uncon scious. He never recovered conscious ness. He was identified as Rev. Henry

Officer Zaezer also heard the clergy man's cries for help, but could not distinguish him in the darkness, Later two men were found in a shanty on the wharf. Their peculiar actions aroused the suspicions of the police, and they were arrested. They gave the names of of Chadwick vs. Chadwick, before Vice-was made evident in the divorce suit of Chadwick vs. Chadwick, before Vice-Coroner Hopper this morning had a long secret interview with Willets and George. When he came out of the jail he was reticent, but said the case was mysterious, and the men would be held until the inquest.

Willets is a night watchman on the Chestnut street wharf and George is a stevedore, who bunks with Willets in the old engine-house at the end of the wharf. Their story is that they were alarmed by crites for help and found the minister clinging to a wharf log. He pleaded with them to save him from drowning.

Willets said he reached down and tried to grainsp the clergyman's hand, but failed. Then he ran to the engine-house and got a long poker, and with the assistance of four sailors from the schooler Fannie J. Bartlett the minister was hauled up on the wharf. He was still alive. They carried him to the engine-house and tried to resuccitate him in a bungling fashion.

There are a number of discrepancies in the stories told by the two men, and this led to their arrest.

Mr. Cheeseman was met by Policeman Zaeyer early in the evening, and was directed to the Kaighn avenue ferry. How he came to be out on the lonely wharf, a few squares distant, several hours later, cannot be explained.

Examination of the spot where the two men under arrest claim to have hauled the minister out of the water, shows that it would have been an easy matter to rescue him.

Coroner Hopper says other arrests will probably be made.

it would have been an easy matter to rescue him.
Coroner Hopper says other arrests will probably be made.
Some friends of the minister say he had been suffering lately from the grip, and there is a possibility that he became temporarily deranged from this malady and wandered off into the water. He had not the slightest cause for suicide.

He had not the slightest cause for suicide.

The reason for suspecting foul play is that Mr. Cheeseman had been an ardent Prohibitionist. He had persistently fought the saloons in Camden at all times, preaching against them and doing all in his power to close them up. It is argued that by so doing he may have antagonized some vicious people.

Mr. Cheeseman had been located in Camden for six years. He was an able preacher, and was very popular. The arrangements for his funeral have not yet been completed.
